What Nat's lights mean

Tell

Nat loves to tell you stories and interesting facts! You can get Nat's attention by saying, "Hey Nat?" When Nat's light-stripe turns yellow, that means that Nat is ready to speak to you without the projector on.

TIP: This mode keeps battery charged longer.

Show

Nat's greatest talent is finding amazing videos and pictures from Nat Geo Kids library to project on your wall! Just say "Nat, show me..." or "Nat, can I see" when you want Nat to start the projector. Nat might need to move around the room to find the best spot for the projection.

TIP: Make sure Nat has enough space for moving. With full battery, Nat can project for up to 30 mins!

Play

Nat has a big collection of quizzes. Nat keeps track of your progress as you get better at quizzes, and makes the questions more difficult. When you level up, Nat gives you access to more fun videos! During quizzes, Nat's light-stripe turns white. Say "Nat, I want to play," "Nat, can we play a game," or "quiz" to start the play mode.

TIP: Nat recognizes different voices, so it is a perfect activity for a party with friends!

Dock

When Nat's battery is low, its light-stripe turns blue. Nat has to find its dock station to charge. If there are any obstacles in the room or if the dock station is not on, Nat might ask you to bring it to charge.

TIP: Let Nat fully charge for 1-2 hours.

Meet Nat!

How to talk to Nat

Hey Nat?

Nat wakes up from sleep mode and starts listening.

Show me something?

Nat turns on projector to show random fun videos from Nat Geo library.

Can we play a game?
